Why the Court isn't so scary after all ☺ #CourtsAreForClaims | AERA ARK

Record now for everybody that missed it. Kat and Matt were talking about how they stopped the process. Was it foreclosure, you guys? A taking process where they begin to put a lien on the public.

They even put you in the newspaper with your name. And, you know, and then, you know, the land court gets involved in over a year or so, then they can foreclose on the property. OK, so they were trying to take your time to begin the process.

And you stopped them. Yeah. Yeah.

With what? Remind the people. What did you use? The legal line analyzer challenging. Well, I appreciate that.

And look, that's the thing is, like I was saying, you guys stop the process. And I highly encourage that you follow your gut when it comes to putting it in the paper, just like they would do after. Because now you have the record where you put them, you challenge their authority.

And now the default, their awareness of the default, all of that record. You don't have to put those records in the the paper. You just put the event of what happened in the paper.

Right. And so on top of that, what you were saying, sending it out to everybody, send it to them all. Like literally that bomb you're talking about.

One hundred percent. It's not even a bomb. It's like a fucking poison gas, mustard gas, something like that.

I think it will also enlighten them to to realize how they're animating the system and that they're doing themselves. You know, we had it. We became friends with the police chief that when we had the first meeting, he came just to witness it.

So we had to, you know, witness the whole thing. And what was I going to say? I forget. But one experience I had when I dropped the letter off with the assessor, it's a young lady who's new there.

And and in the end, I did ask her when she came and she stamped the thing and signed it, whatever. She looked so guilty because she had already gotten the first challenge letter. And I don't know how much people really grasp when they first read this, because it takes time to, you know.

However, I just in the end, after she was done signing the whole thing, I just asked her and I said, so how come you, you too? You always said that we would have another meeting so we can relook and think about this, how to proceed. And then she looked even more guilty and she said, well, the manager, she just decided to. So, you know, it's like I think they need to wake up to what they're doing.

I think all of that instead of a bomb or a poison, that it will start to wake them up to what they're actually doing. Oh, that's what I was going to say. The police chief, he knew I sat with him and every time I go with him, I bring papers, you know, and he'd say, did you bring my homework again? You know, and I'd give him the papers of all the stuff with the legal system and the laws and everything.

And so we became friends. And then, you know, he really helped us. You know, he really did.

And he helps the people in this town. You know, he works for the corporation, but at the same time, he knows that he's there because he sees the pain in people. He saw he was a cop his whole life and he had a heart and, you know, he was just a really cool guy.

You know, yeah. And they all rely on that gives them the power that they can say, oh, it's the law. And, oh, it's the DOR and all this.

But at the same time, what they do to people, you know, and people, I mean, the DOR, you read that two weeks ago when we talked about it. It says that in the end, they literally can take your house just simply. And they say forever, forever, you know, but what that does to people lives.

Come on. And you do this because and then they get a fat OPEB on the end. Other benefits.

Yeah. Other post benefits. So every penny that they make for the town, they get in a slush fund that they get whenever they leave or retire.

And so they say they're on it. They're like commissioned. You know, they're on commission, believe it or not.

You know, it's really funny. So it should be stopped and this awareness needs to come. And so for us, if I just can finish this before we go into courts and all that stuff.

I, I, the feeling afterwards was so settled and so just incredibly great. And I had this, you know, Shakespeare always says that life is just a stage and we're merely players. And so it came to me and I was like, yeah, it's really true.

And but if you wake up and you start seeing, then you can make a choice. Do you want to be the pawn on the board that's being moved? Or are you actually the player who moves the little figures? You know what I mean? And so through going through this process, I realized that how I walk into town hall to drop these letters off. I am my authority so much more than I ever was before.

And and and that's that's the key to the whole thing. So it's not only that waking them up, but it on the other hand, it moves you more into your place. And then the contrast with the people that that work there.

They see this beautiful woman come in with a smile and say, hello. You know, this is just, you know, something personal here, you know, and and and is not afraid. And, you know, it's it's beautiful.

But and then the thing is that those people that you're talking to, they're also they want to know how to protect their own houses. And they're working for the system that takes other people's houses. Yeah, of course.

Exactly. So you're giving them, hey, here's exactly what to do. Exactly.

They can pick it up now, too. And and I think it's just that what you always say, you know, we are the law. We don't need law.

We don't need rights. We are all this, but only through experience to go through this narrow thing. That's when you come on.

That's it. You have to have the experience. You live it.

You know, so and to give you give everyone here and who will be watching an example of authority. It's like let's take healing, for example. If I was to and I was talking about this on last night's call, if I was to say, I think it was last night.

But if I let's just say that I was needing to heal, but I couldn't heal because I said so and so hurt me. And until so and so does whatever I think they should do for me to heal, I can't heal myself. And I'm like, OK, let's take all of these people off the table.

Let's let's say you got hurt today and tomorrow. The person that hurt you was gone and they don't exist anymore in this physical dimension. Are you going to just like not heal? Are you going to be like, oh, they're they're gone now.

So all of my abilities to heal myself from this trauma that I experienced from them are just completely gone. When we do that, we're giving away our authority to them. So the way that I look at it is that there is no one that I'm going to be giving my authority to in that capacity where they have that much authority over my own ability to heal myself.

I'm the commander of my own healing, and it's the same thing when it comes to the legal system and anything like that. You're standing in your own authority in those moments. You're taking back that authority.

So that's why we that's why we love the laws of nature, too, because we help a lot of people just by asking questions. We don't give them any advice at all. We just guide them towards where that sometimes they don't know it's in their subconscious and this thing's happening.

But they don't even realize that it's connected to their illness at all. And until they can resolve that, then, you know, they're going to be in the same place. And it does feel darn good to find back to your true authority.

Well, congratulations, you guys, on that success. You literally did exactly what we are presenting here again. It's not about getting acknowledgement from the system.

We don't need them to acknowledge our documents and tell us that they're valid, accurate or true or that they're credible or that they have authority. We don't need any of that. We just need them to stop acting because the action is what caused the harassment.

Literally acting. Right. Literally act.

When we stop the performance and the acting, we stop the harassment by default. That's right. And the end result is peace in our own lives.

Yep. So what we do at the ARC is not to force our will on others. It's to ensure others don't force their will on us.

That's it. Yeah. So I'm going to Teresa has her hand up.

Teresa, I'm going to take what you have to say really quick. And then we're going to move into tonight's class to go into that, because there's a lot of good stuff for tonight. So, yeah, it's really quick.

It's about the house. I heard you say something about putting it in the paper. Do I need to do something like that, too? You could do that.

You've already sent them your records. That's what I was saying. You've sent your records in.

So you have your record of the challenge that you've given them. And you have the record of the default if you sent them a default awareness letter. And if you haven't sent them a default awareness letter, there's a template that I put in the We Gather Weekly I Can't Talk group.

And you can use that to fill in the stuff, the details about what you did for your record. And then you can go into the newspaper and you can put it in the public. And you don't have to put all the details.

You don't have to put the challenge letter in the paper. You don't have to put the default awareness letter in the paper. You just put the event of what happened.

You recount what happened and you make another record of your account of what happened in the paper. The same way that they would do. So, Kat, if you have a copy of what you're talking about, whenever you guys said that they put something in the paper for that school, I think it was.

Yeah. If you have the copy of that, like you can show that, put it into the group so that they can see exactly what the other side, the other party of this did in that process and performance. And then you can go in and just put your own words into that structure of how they did it.

Oh, yeah. I mean, I think that school just posted what happened to them. My mind's going to, I think, yeah, just a little.

Tell the story. Make it public. However.

Yeah. I'll post it and see what they did. Yep.

And then save it for your files. Yeah. Okay.

I just want to check because I come in on the last part of that about putting the paper and I'm like, what did she put in the paper? It's just just putting it in a public setting, because that's what the agents would do. If they're trying to take your house, they're trying to foreclose. They're trying to kick you out.

Anything like that there. They got to follow process and performance. And part of that process is them putting something in a public setting, saying that they they recorded it publicly.

What do you think about county recorders? The deeds office. You can put it wherever you want to. I mean, it's public as well.

You have witnessing it. The more powerful it is. Yeah.

So can I ask you something quickly, since we're at this, because the only other thought idea that we had, which is why I wanted to upgrade my credits and Ryan helped out already. However, you know, that deed, what Matt mentioned that everyone has with the house, that we always said that to them, that it was posted without consent from Matt. And again, I was going to run the deed.

It has text and all that stuff through the analyzer and challenge that this deed is bogus because it needed a biological living manifestation. Yeah. Right.

This to post this, to record this challenges and make the deed null and void, which started this whole process that we even were in their stupid system and challenge them on the deed. And then put that on the deeds office as the last thing that is marked under Matthew or buying, you know, whatever like that. And then give them the default and it's a done deal and tied.

Yeah. Go look up where the source of authority is for the deed writer and anybody that's included in bringing that deed into a manifested physical state. And then after you have figured out where those sources come from, just like we use the analyzer, go find that all the legalities that they are claiming gives them authority and then target those and then target the departments that are overseeing those things.

I tracked down the guy that put that deed on, never met him, didn't have no idea who the hell he was. I finally track him down in Florida, find his phone number and his address. And I call him and I start to ask him, is this legal? What you did, you know, you're a lawyer.

He was a lawyer. He's retired. And, you know, and he's freaking out.

I'm like, well, that's all I'm asking you. You know, you have to straighten this out. You did something.

You performed something. And, you know, the results is with my family. And the next day he disconnected his phone and moved.

And this is quite a bunch of years ago. I swear to God. You know, I think maybe I can say that to the whole group.

We've been looking a lot into this for years and had always were always right on track knowing that what is wrong. But through your help with the legal line analyzer, it just puts it so to the point. And then it cannot be rebutted.

It's impossible. And that's what we were looking for. And we're so grateful and thankful that you helped us to make this final step.

Because, like I said, it's not only good for this, bring this long process finally to an end. But for your own feeling that when you go through this and you only came there because you went through this yourself. Through all this deep stuff that happened to you.

That's how you came to find these things. And so thank you. And because we feel it now, too, through our own experience.

And I can only recommend this to anybody. And then the only other thing is that, you know, I'm German and I have done stuff in Germany with the court, which worked out. But however, I'm now my brain's already thinking, I wonder if they're using that.

You said there's one person in Germany who's also already in your group, whether they're using something like the legal line analyzer in German. Because obviously Cornell's law wouldn't work there. So I'm already trying to figure out how can we.

So actually, Germany is owned by US Inc. So I you know what that means. I have no idea.

Well, here's the thing. And something I'll answer the other question in the chat in a second. But here's the thing is that whenever Carola came in, who is in Germany and she came in and she was going to send out her documents.

Well, at first I was going to send them out for and it was like three hundred dollars to send it. And I was like, this is ridiculous. She's like she said it was only five bucks.

That's stupid. Because if I would have sent it to an agency here, I'm spending 30, not five. You know, so she used it in English.

And the reason that we didn't care was because these agencies, these governments, they have translators. There is no way that they don't have a translator. Yeah, that's cool to know.

Thank you. Because on top is that obviously there is no Germany or any it's all EU, European Union. I noticed this with even the young generations in Germany.

English is just moving in and moving in more and more. And maybe when you get into the court thing, maybe you can. I was thinking about, you know, in trust law, how they have attorney in fact, you know, instead of attorney at law, which might be able to.

I went over that in a video where I did definitions. It's on the Facebook page. Especially because we sort of did that for Kat's mother, you know? Yeah.

Because she's just, you know, she's too old to be trudging around there doing that. Anyway, thank you. Yes, ma'am.

All right. So. Is there anything else anybody needs to say before I begin tonight's class? I do.

OK. Who am I talking to? Leah. Who is it? Leah.

Oh, hi. Hi, Leah. Hi.

Hi. Sorry. Just a very quick question.

I have a membership and I'm not sure if I have to go in each month and make the payment or it happens automatically. Does that make sense? It should do automatically if you did a membership. Excellent.

I'll have a look because I've had a few issues, but thank you. Any issues you have, please don't hesitate to send a message into the group or email us and we will get back to you and get it fixed. Ryan's really good at that.

Yes, I noticed. Thanks, Ryan. Thanks, Ryan.

No problem. All right, guys. So I'm going to begin.

So last week, we went into the container, which is the jurisdiction. We went over the form and the function of the container. We went over the process and the performance with inside the form and function.

And we went over the, what was it? What was the other one? Duty and obligations. Duty and obligations. The process and the performance.

So we went through all the different processes because here's the thing. Here's the beautiful thing about this is that what we went over, that foundation is literally the foundation that all the bullshit is stacked on top of. So we're following molecular law.

It doesn't matter if it's my body, the cells in my body, the air that we breathe and exist in, the ocean, the skies, the trees, the plants, the animals. Like all of it has to follow the same process. My body's organs have to, they have duties and obligations that they have to perform and process things inside of a form and a function within the container of my body, which is its jurisdiction that it does all that in.

Otherwise, I die. The ether itself that we all exist in, the physical dimension, the jurisdictions of the as above and so below, all of it has the same process. So underneath all of it, the legal system and all of its layers of nonsense, that is the core structure of what it's operating off of.

But it wants us all blind to all of that, to that, because that's too simple. And that takes away their power. That takes away the illusion that they're the only ones that have authority in this physical dimension.

And it gives us back a knowing that we can use paper too, and we can write on the paper, and we can serve the paper, and we can be our own administers of our estate, and we can stand in our own authority, and we can say no, and we can challenge them. That's not the image they want painted, because then they can't mindlessly move. Then they can't mindlessly perform.

Then they can't fill schools with mindless people to perform the duties and animate the roles. Because if everybody knew that they could do it themselves, what do you need to go to school to be a lawyer for? So you can play fiction in your life and somebody else's? So there's no need for it anymore. So anyway, we went over all of that last week, and how we serve them, and all of those things.

So tonight, we're going to go over the court, because the arena of the court is a very interesting thing. So I'm going to make my little makeshift court here, all of its pillars. All right, we're in the court.

I drew this on another piece of paper so I wouldn't forget all of this when I came into class tonight. So what is the court? Does anybody know what the court is? What's the purpose of the court? Make some money. Make money, yeah.

Process and perform. Process and perform, yes. What is it processing and performing? Bonds.

Bonds, but think deeper. Paper. The record.

Ah, the record. Claims. Processing and performing claims.

So when you're in the court, you have the judge right here in the center of the court, and he's being asked. He's sitting there as a processor and a performer of a claim, and he's being asked to take an action. He's being asked to act, to animate the role.

The claim is asking the judge to animate, okay? Anyone can make a claim and bring a claim to a courtroom. So this makes a courtroom not this space where they just prosecute criminals and not this space where they just have all the authority. It makes it a building where two parties can come to the table with a claim, and the other party has to prove the claim.

And the judge is being asked to act to oversee the claim and give a judgment over the claim. So when it comes to the mortgage, when it comes to your houses, it comes to foreclosure, all that. The mortgage company would be on this side as the claimant, or either side.

It doesn't really matter. So we have a claimant, and I'm just going to use, for example, PennyMac. So PennyMac is the claimant.

PennyMac is claiming that they own a house that you are paying for, and you are defaulting on the agreement. You're defaulting on the payments. And we can say this about any company that, credit acceptance for a car.

So it's not just to mortgage. We can do this about anything, anybody that's coming to the table with a claim. So let's say these two claimants here are saying, I own a house, and I own a car, whatever that is.

Anyway, I own a house and I own a car. And this defendant over here is what they're used to. They're used to you having to defend yourself.

Why are they used to you having to defend yourself? The reason is, is because you are the one who is self-identifying with the you role that's on the contract. That is the only reason you would defend yourself in any matter whatsoever. And I hope that, I think you guys are seeing this backwards because it looks backwards to me, and I'm sorry about that.

But anyway, it's not for you guys. Okay, good. I'm over here like, I hope you can follow along.

So you have self-identified as you. And so therefore the word you, listen to this, the word you. What is a jurisdiction? Words are a jurisdiction.

What's another jurisdiction? Paper, yes, I hear Ron yelling it from another room. Paper is another jurisdiction. So the word you is inside of this jurisdiction and on this jurisdiction here.

And because you have believed that you are this word that is existing inside of this paper, you are now defending that position that is not reality. It's not who you are. So you're in the state of defense in that way.

But what have we done with the Legal Line Analyzer and reclaiming our authority? We removed having to defend ourselves to a fiction. We're no longer even letting, we're no longer even acknowledging it. We're not emotionally tethered to it.

It's not controlling our reactions and responses anymore. We're coming at everything from a place of peace and calm. So instead of defending you, the word on the paper, you are now the challenger.

That is the position that you're standing in now. Because the claimant is coming to the table, but I guarantee you the claimant is not making a claim about the challenger. The claimant is making a claim about the you word inside of the paper.

So when they come with their claims, they're only talking about this jurisdiction here. The court is also a jurisdiction itself. And they're saying, I'm going to take the word jurisdiction and the paper jurisdiction and process them through the court jurisdiction and ask the judge to act and perform inside of his own jurisdiction over a claim that I've made and have never proven.

But I have record. And what's my record? Contract. I have a contract with a signature on it of you, the challenger that doesn't know he has authority, self-identifying with the role you as the word.

So you have the challenger have signed for this entity on this paper record because this right here is the property of the agreement. Not the house and not the car. Another thing for the record, they have sent you bills that you have paid.

Again, agreeing that you are you. They have also, when you stop paying, sent you default notices with their threats. So they're telling you you're in default.

This is what we're going to do if you do not remedy this situation. But here's the thing. Remedying the situation is not paying the bill.

And again, animating the role, remedying the situation is challenging the record that they are placing. They're creating a paper trail. And no one is coming and intervening with the paper trail and challenging it.

They're just defending themselves. They're in a very passive, weak position defending themselves from the record that's being created. And like you said, Kat and Matt, they put it in the newspaper.

So they are generating their record over here. They need this record to go to this guy. So they can get this guy to do this thing, which is act.

And most people standing in the defensive position, they don't have a record. They have a question mark of what the fuck is a record. They don't know.

They have no idea. So they're standing there with nothing. They're bare naked.

They got nothing. The legal system has all the records. So this, to them, equates to proof.

That's what this guy is looking for. The judge is looking for the proof. The proof is the record.

You have none. They have all of it. So therefore, by default, not by bias, not by emotion, by default of the way that all this operates, the record wins because the record is the proof.

So the judge is siding with the ones who have the proof. So now we're coming in with the analyzer. And we're doing the analyzer, the default awareness letter, the newspaper.

We're following all of these things right here. We have the contract that we signed, but we're challenging that contract's validity. We're challenging the bills are being sent to us.

We're challenging the threats that they're making. All of that stuff. So let's say the challenger, that's the physical, biological manifestation.

That's you, the living man. Now, the property over here is the agreement that you've made with these entities. But over here, the property that's being talked about is everything that you are physically stewarding.

And what are you physically stewarding? You're stewarding your house. You're stewarding your car. Anything that they can draw up a contract over, you're actually physically standing in it.

You're maintaining it. You're taking care of it. While you're doing this, are you inside of this paper doing this action? It's not possible, is it? So the jurisdiction here of you doing that action is the as above or the so below.

And that all depends on you and your actions. So whatever choices you make are the ones that are reigning. But you're inside the as above and so below jurisdiction while you're physically stewarding the property as the physical, biological manifestation who is challenging the claim that has been brought to the court by the claimant who is an entity that's animating a role.

So these guys aren't even standing in a proper position while they're making a claim. They're still coming as a role. They can't speak, has no eyes, ears, mouth, limbs, organs, processor, ability to articulate, sign a piece of paper.

So it's already a fraudulent claim before it even gets here. If they want a valid claim, they need to stand as a physical, biological man with the matter of penny Mac or credit acceptance and the agreement that was made between the two parties. They can't stand as the entity and have a valid claim.

So when we bring in the legal line analyzer. We are challenging every claim that comes to this guy and we're letting this guy know to the judge is going to know. The clerk is going to know the bailiff is going to know these guys that are animating the claim for penny Mac or credit acceptance or any other company out there.

Those guys are being challenged as well. If they have lawyers, their lawyers are getting served. Everybody is being challenged to prove that any of this shit that's happening right here on this side is actually legitimate.

They may have a record here because the defender didn't have one. But the challenger, you can bet your ass the challenger has a record. The challenger has the legal line analyzer record.

The challenger has the default of awareness record. The challenger has a publication in the newspaper. The challenger has all the receipts from them serving all of these people that are making all these claims.

And the challenger is physically standing and stewarding the property that doesn't exist in the contract. The challenger can prove that he's standing and stewarding the property physically. The claimant cannot prove that the property is inside of this property.

Which is the agreement. He can't prove that. You're looking for facts here.

And the facts are that. These are facts. These are tangible.

I can hold it in my hand, see it with my eyes, experience it with my body and my soul. Those are facts. None of this is.

There's a record there. But the only reason there's a record there is because they know the game. They know what the judge is going to go with.

They know what he's going to side with. It's like playing a game of baseball and you get to practice and you know what the coach is going to tell you to do. And you're preparing to deliver exactly what the coach is saying that you need to do that day.

If you don't, you're getting benched. This guy is going to bench these guys if they don't have a solid record with nothing challenging it. So if this claimant says, you know what, you challenged me, but I still want to go to court.

Bring it on. Let's go to court. Because you're going to learn today that the judge is not going to act just simply because you make the claim.

That's not his role. His role is to see where is the proof. And if you lay it out like this, there's no way in fuck he's going with this record.

No way. Unless he's been paid for very well. Other than that, he's going to be sitting there going, well guys, they challenged you.

There's 48 questions on this paper that you still haven't answered. So let's go through them. Sounds like a you problem.

Exactly. So that's the thing, is that instead of fearing, if the legal analyzer and these people that get it are just completely clueless and they don't think that it's doing anything, they have no idea, and they think they can still run a game on you, laugh and go to court. Because you have the record.

And you can say, hey, I need the proof here. Cool, they have all this receipt, but so do I. But I don't just have receipt. I actually have the physical things they're talking about.

They can't come and take it until the judge has given them a court order that says that they can. And unless they can prove everything that you've asked them to prove, the judge is not going to force you out of your house just because they have this. He has to hear both sides.

So, Brandy. Yes, sir. Just wanted to ask with how, like within the courts, you helped us to realize that the living beings are in playing roles like a judge plays a role.

There's so much played up about, you know, a man or woman cannot even speak in court, you know, that the living being has been taken out of the whole system completely. You know, and then there's pro se. They'll want you to go as or sui juris is the other one.

How do you deal with being maintaining that? I mean, we were in court together and we didn't have a problem. But, you know, maybe that's just it. If you don't have a problem, you don't have a problem to think about all this shit.

But I just wondering what you thought about that. Well, pro se and all those things, they all have a definition behind them. And what do we talk about when it comes to the definitions? The words are the jurisdiction, which is why the legal analyzer doesn't fall into their jurisdiction.

It's its own jurisdiction because the language is different and it has its own definitions behind it. So we don't have a definition for pro se. If you go into court and you say, I am pro se, you want to have your own definition for what that means.

And you want to have it written and already served to them, not come last second talking about it. You want that to be on the record before you get there. I don't use those terms.

I was like with the police, with the police chief. I finally got it through to him that, you know, they they must get joined or whenever they stop somebody or they're even going to talk with them. Right.

They have to get joined this biological body to have you consent that that is you. That's their whole thing. Without that, they have no authority whatsoever.

You know, and so there's all this about, you know, walking past the bar or being in the courtroom. You're in their jurisdiction physically now, even though you can't be, which is really crazy. But I think they designed it that way.

You know, so I was just. Well, that's the thing is you are in the jurisdiction of the court, but the court has no authority over any jurisdiction but its own. So that your body is jurisdiction, your mind is a jurisdiction.

It doesn't have any authority over those jurisdictions. It doesn't have any authority over the challenge letter that you've sent in and the definitions and clarifications that are on that challenge letter. It has no authority whatsoever over the words that are in legislation.

That's the thing that the jurisdiction of the court has no authority over the legal systems legislation. None. The only time the court comes into play is when a party has defended itself, agreed that it's the you in the jurisdiction and a claimant, whether it's a fucking mortgage company, a car company or a police officer is saying that you are you and brings you into that courtroom.

So you basically you have it done before you show up to any building. That's the whole thing. I think I wanted one thing in the process of learning that cover letter that you talked about that always goes with any of those challenge letters.

I remember in one of the calls, we didn't do this yet, but in the next cover letters, I want to put this in there to say that everything that's on the challenge letter goes by the definitions given by the challenge letter and nothing but those definitions. And if you put that, you mentioned this earlier and I wrote it down, that this is already stated before they even go to the challenge letter. And I thought that's brilliant.

And our next cover letters will have that so they can't wiggle themselves around. Letting them know that they can't misinterpret, misclassify, misrecord or misunderstand you. Exactly.

Yes. And that you will only be like they can't. I always let them know you can't translate what I'm saying through legalese.

I'm not speaking that. So, by default, they already know I'm outside of the jurisdiction because I'm not speaking the language of that jurisdiction. The government is not even the jurisdiction of the word.

Like, are you guys seeing what I'm saying when I'm saying this? It's like, these are just houses of things that they're processing and performing these words and these papers through. But it's not the actual jurisdiction. The government is its own jurisdiction.

And just like the court, it has the legislation and the paper that it moves inside of its jurisdiction. It brings those things into its jurisdiction. But just because it brought it into the jurisdiction doesn't mean that it has authority over the jurisdiction.

And when you come in as the challenger, you're not coming in as judge. Hey, you have authority over this matter or any of that. The only reason you're there is because the claimant is an idiot and didn't realize what you sent them and thinks that they still have some kind of authority over you and is going to find out the hard way.

Lynn, silence is so peaceful, sister. No, whether you sent a cover letter or not, when I first started doing all this, I didn't even put a cover letter with my stuff. I just started sending out notices and challenging their authority to do the things that they did.

And I was receiving nothing but silence. But guess what? Nothing was moving. Nothing was happening.

And that was a good thing because they were trying to make something move. They were trying to make something happen. And then I stopped it from happening.

They have us in a state of being where we think that we need them to acknowledge it. Oh, you're right. I bow out.

I'm done. You won. Here it is, the proof on paper that you won.

Acknowledge your authority over yourself. We don't need any of it. That's giving them way too much authority over us.

Yep, Rebecca, you're correct. It does. It states that we are only speaking the language that's on that paper and interpret it through that language at the top of it, if I'm not mistaken.

Three weeks of crickets. Now, unless you're in Puerto Rico, Puerto Rican crickets can be pretty fucking loud and annoying. Yeah, I know.

I'm good on those. I'll pass. That and guineas.

Look, guineas I'm used to because I was raised in the South and those were, we called them our redneck alarm system. But those crickets in Puerto Rico, they ain't nothing like those crickets. That is the loudest noise I've ever heard in my life.

Now, a cricket in the corner of a concrete room sounds louder than a school fire alarm and will wake you from the deepest depths of sleep that you will ever be in. Your soul will be alert. We both heard that.

We were in Puerto Rico and we both literally, it was like rising from the dead at the same time looking at each other like, what the fuck is that? And we couldn't find it for like three hours. We could not find this thing and it didn't shut up the whole time. And then we found this half an inch fucker just doing his thing.

We're like, you bastard. So, yeah, if as long as it's not them, then yeah, they'll be pretty quiet. All right.

Well, the mic's open, guys. That was all I wanted to share for tonight because I just wanted to go deeper into that so you can see that this court is not the big bad boogeyman. It's just a container for form and function, process and performance.

And as long as you're challenging instead of defending and you have a record instead of nothing whatsoever, then there's nothing that the judge is going to do against you. I wanted to just say with this experience in Germany with the court, it was exactly what we did. And it was, in fact, you know, I mean, this whole process took a whole year when the electric company started to bother my mother with what they wanted.

And then we always did this accepted agreement. Yeah, sure. But, you know.

Prove this. Yeah. And they were just horrible.

How they acted and with the threats and arrogance and the seeming law and all this crap and then started to threaten with court. And they thought we would fall for that one out of fear and go along. And then we challenged him back and with always different things.

And then they gave it to the lawyer because they couldn't deal with this anymore. And then the lawyer was all like, oh, nice. And don't worry about this and whatever.

But he too threatened. Wow, we have a thunderstorm shaking. Yeah, it started lightning when you said that.

And I was, yeah, continue. They're listening out there. However, and then so the lawyer tries to threaten us again with court.

And we were like, sure, whatever. But the minute it went to court, it felt like it calmed all down because that's what you just said, that the court needs to look for the proof. And we had all the proof, everything.

Like the lawyer was so stupid and he tried to tell the court that the analog electric meters don't exist anymore. But in the meantime, we had gone right away and bought one and had the papers and the calibration deadline and all this. We had all the paperwork.

And so from the get go, we wrote to the court to his statement that they don't exist anymore, that it's in our possession. We have one. And we offered it for free to you, but you didn't want to go for it.

And here's the paperwork for it. So we had one proof after the other. And that's why the court went into silence because the other people's side had no record.

And to us, that's when it started that my authority came to me that I realized if we can just present this in a calm way, we were friendly on top of everything else. Give them the facts. And it proved the court could not move against us because their claims fell apart.

We had the proof. And that's what I learned from this in Germany. And so a court is really, is not as freaky as it's portrayed.

Just because you're going to court, everybody freaks out. They're taking me to court. Oh, my God.

Yeah, they're because they want somebody. It's like they're running and tattling on you and they want somebody to side with them. And so when you take away their ability to do anything and the court says, I'm out of this, I'm not even going to participate with this, then they're like, well, fuck, all I can do now is just sell it to a debt collector, have them harass you.

I can continue to send you bills and pay for terrorism and make threats and hope that you will reanimate yourself as this role at some point and reactivate this process and give me more proof to go along with the record that I'm building. But that's it. They can't do anything.

And that's one of the things we saw with the guy with the child support is after he challenged the judge, he challenged the lawyers, all of that, and all of them, the lawyer had no idea what to do, asking the judge to act or judicial review. The judge is like, you're unintelligent for asking me this. No action taken.

I'm not going to act on it. And then, you know, after all the lawyers are served and they can't move and the judge is saying, I'm not fucking touching this. Now the wife or ex-wife is saying, well, send terroristic threats through text message for fear mongering.

If you would just, you know, this would all end if you would just get rid of your rights altogether. Because there's nothing left they can do. So it's like, well, all I can do is just spew bullshit out of my mouth at this point.

In a quiet way, you are also challenging the judge because the judge's butt is sitting on the seat. You know, they're alive and they're, and they're liable as well, like anybody else. Yeah.

And this judge made it very clear. I'm not animating a fucking roll today. With the last time the court wrote us before we wrote our final letter, they actually, that was the last lame attempt that it said, well, if you agree now to everything what the claimant wants from you, you can only pay half of the costs.

Oh, thanks. Okay. Generous offer.

Like begging at the end, you know. It's ridiculous. So that's, that's when we started laughing.

We're like, okay, we got this. All right. Literally, once you start seeing it like that, like you go through the experience and then you start seeing that they become grovelers and beggars at your feet and you're just like, holy shit.

This is just funny. I feel bad for you. But not bad enough to give you my house.

But I, you know, I feel, I feel sad for your position in this right now. Honestly. And Lynn, I know you said that you sent something in.

I'm curious if you're willing to speak about that, what you sent in and got silence about. So I sent in, let me go back a little bit. I have three kids.

I have two sons and a daughter. My daughter is 12 years old. She just turned 12.

So during this, she was 11. And me and my husband have been separated for the last three years. We finally got divorced and I think it was official in 23.

And the last year when I've had visitation, this is before I knew about any of this, right? So I didn't know I had this ability and I've had every other weekend for a while now. And so I would get them every other weekend and my daughter would come to me. She's got my kind of hair, big, fluffy, thick, curly hair.

And she would come to me and her hair would look nice on the top. But the most, she wouldn't undo it. She wouldn't, she wouldn't show me her hair.

She would come to me with a mat. It would all be matted. It would take me three to four hours to do her hair every time she came to me.

She would have, I pay $317 a week in child support. My children should have everything they possibly could need. Shoes, clothes, hair products for my daughter.

No, I was taking, I was spending my time with my children so my daughter could have functional hair just to the point where it didn't hurt her. So when she was two and a half, she had a seizure, which stepped her back. So if you look at her, she looks like your average teenager.

But mentally, she has a difficulty keeping up her personal hygiene and stuff like that. It's all documented within the school district. And I've been thinking about this.

I need to go get all of that proof too. But she's been having help all the way through school. So I finally just, I was so sick and tired.

And now this is after I found you guys and started really thinking about what the fuck am I doing? I can't let her go through this anymore. She's a young woman. She needs someone to help her.

And she lives with her father, her grandmother. She's got people around her 24-7. Huge family.

Nobody's helping her. Nobody. And I'm like, all right, it's time to take this girl back.

We need to get her to a point where we can have a routine. She can feel like a young woman and be good. So I sent in the paperwork the first time saying, listen, I want my daughter and my younger son back.

And I said, because they're just not getting the routines and the care. I mean, there's no physical damage. There's no bruising.

There's no, you know, issues like that. But I said, this needs to stop, especially for my daughter. So I sent the paperwork in.

Well, I get a petition come back and the petition says, we're going to take all your rights away. You don't get to see your kids unless you go to the Y and you have to sign documents and you can have two hours a day, two days a week. And I almost did that.

Almost did that because it was right at that tipping point for me. And I had you call them. And then so I called the number because I had received nothing from the court.

They had not signed the paperwork to even have any of this put through for a court order yet. And then technically, if it's not been signed, it doesn't count until it's signed by the judge. And so I'm like, what the fuck am I supposed to be doing? I was so fucking clueless.

And so I called this number. They're like, yeah, they asked me a bunch of questions. We'll text you where to go.

We'll text you and we'll see you there. And then there was it was I don't know if it was Instagram or somewhere. I watch a lot of moms and people with CPS and stuff like that that have gone through this.

And there was it just popped up on my screen. This woman said she would rather refuse to contract with any of these people and and have herself fully intact and aligned with herself than to contract and to be groveling to see her children. And I said, you know what? That hit home because it may be a little while, but I'm not going to just bow down to these assholes who think they can just push me and push my children because that's not OK.

Because I got to thinking about it. I'm like, what's this going to do to them? Two hours a day, two days a week. That's nothing.

My God, that's that's bullshit. And I'm like, I messaged him back. I said, and the only words I said is.

What was it? It's. No consent, no contract. That's it.

That's all I said. No consent, no contract, and I left it at that. I haven't heard from them, and I've that's kind of been my quote lately.

No consent, no contract. And I've been telling my ex-husband this. He.

We're supposed to be communicating, even according to his to the court order. They're supposed to be communicating through the wizard at the family wizard app. There's different ones, but this one we use and he hasn't been communicating.

And so I have been making a record also through the wizard app of all the things that he has been refusing to do, refusing to communicate. But he's supposed to be telling about doctors appointments, medications, medical issues, all of it. And he's done nothing, anything school wise, nothing.

So I've been documenting that through the wizard app. So I have that as well. And it's just fucking amazes me how low he will go and his lawyer will go.

They said that I poisoned my children. Didn't it's all it said was poison, didn't give what it was, didn't give a toxic toxicality report. There was absolutely no proof, none, not even like if I had been the judge and I had looked at him and be like, what the fuck is this? Where's your proof? But because I missed the court date, they just sent it off automatically.

And they have the record. Only reason it even went through, but I had sent my, my burdens of proof way, like right after that I'd sent it and they still didn't, it was still silence. And then the judge, it took him a month to sign it.

So they got my information, but they still decided to sign it after they read it. So I got to, I'm waiting for ink to arrive because my printer ran out of ink and I can't find any locally. So after my ink comes in, I'm going to be writing all the default paperwork and I'm going to be sending that off and we'll see what happens then.

And then also, remember the court is a place for claims. So you can turn into the claimant now, making them the defender because they, they're not standing in proper jurisdiction and proper knowing. Right.

How do I, how exactly do I do that? It'd be like, like a petition, but not. It would be like you going to the same thing they're doing, going into the court and calling you to the court over the claim. So now you're claiming everything that you just said is happening.

And here's your record that you've been building of all of the things that he's been doing, all the documents and burden of proof that you've sent in, all that stuff. Now you have all those records and you're asking the judge to now, and I would be looking for a different judge than the one who's doing all this, to oversee the matter. And now they have to defend themselves and prove all of it.

They even went as low as to changing my mailing address. I found that out and I was like, what are you talking about? I asked the lady because it just, it, it kind of clicked in me one day, like, why is it taking so long? Usually they come back with something and nothing's been coming back. And I'm like, there's no fucking way they would change my information.

No way. So I call up at the court and I'm like, what's my address on file? And she told me the address and it's somewhere on a main street somewhere in my town and not even close to here. I'm like, what the hell? I said, that's not my address.

And she goes, yeah, it changed when the lawyer for your ex-husband decided to put the petition in. I'm like, oh, that's funny. I'm here.

Sorry about that. Ryan brought me a delicious plate of food. But yeah, they should not, you need to have that record as well.

If you guys don't have one, when you're dealing with all this stuff, download you an app on your phone that automatically records conversations when you start a call. And it'll log it into your phone. And that way, even if you don't have written record, you have verbal record that you can bring to the table.

And you do have the written record, because if they have it on file as a different address and you never did that, then, I mean, that's part of your proof. That's part of your record. Yep.

It'd be like a murder case. They need cameras, footage of you coming in there, phone calls of you calling in and doing it, asking them to do it, written letters of you requesting it. They don't have any of that proof.

Nope. So, that's something you can do is now reverse the roles and take them in and make them prove everything that they've said. I'm going to do that for the child support group because I've tried so many times before finding you guys.

I've tried three times to have it at least lowered because I had to get out. I'm in healthcare. So, I had to get out of my healthcare job for a while because that was COVID and it was so rough.

We were working four or five shifts in a row. And so, I took a year off and I was bringing home maybe $120 a week. It was rough for a while.

So, I had to actually go back to my old job, which is a state job and I make good money. But still, it takes half my paycheck. And it sounds awful.

I don't want to stop the child support for any bad reasons. I will always be there for my children, but I just don't want to do it through their system anymore. So, I just wanted to say that because I know people are like, well, don't you want to take care of your child? Yes, and I have always, but I shouldn't have to do it through.

No, you don't need a third party system to do that. Right. They force themselves to be involved and they take about 50% of the money for themselves.

It doesn't even. When you put somebody on $100 a month child support and we're going to take $50 of that. What are we supposed to do with that? You know, just send it.

Take your documents for your child support, whatever the last ones were. How many of you have and run them through the analyzer and challenge that too? Yeah, I did actually. And they were, I sent that and the custody issue at the same time.

And both of them have been silent. So, I can do the default for both of them now. Hey, Lynn, you said you were waiting on current printer ink to send out document.

Yeah. Are you sending it through the mail? It is. So, I bought an Epson 5200, I think.

And I thought to myself, oh, I just need the black ink. And then there was a new update on it. And so, the update is updated and now I can't use any ink except for the Epson ink.

Okay. So, I guess this is a good time to bring this up. I just ran across something.

I saw a video. You go through the algorithm and I see stuff on credit. And the guy's like, hey, I send in letters to the credit bureaus, blah, blah, blah, blah, blah.

And I know people that print out their own stuff and they send it to the credit bureaus. But some people don't have printers, some people don't have access to it. And I found a website that you can upload any PDF that you want.

And it sends it certified USPS mail to anywhere you want. So, you don't have to print anything. You can upload the PDF, type it out, whatever it is.

As long as you can make it a Word document, then make it a PDF, upload it to that site. And you can send – there's one site that you can send up to a million copies for whatever the price is. And you can send it anywhere.

So, the site is – I wanted to bring this up so that you guys can see it. What is it? OnlineCertifiedMail.com. And then there's one more that lets you do way more, LetterStream.com. So, those are platforms that you guys can use to ship off any documents without having to print it out, go to the post office and do it all there. We recommend you do that because then you have control of the documents and you know who's handling it.

But if for whatever reason you can't do it, then you have that ability to do everything right from your computer. So, if you guys didn't know that, now you know. Sorry.

And then I see a message from Shirley on the HELOC. You can literally take the contract that you guys have with your mortgage company and run that through the analyzer. Have you – I mean, you can unmute yourself if you're still here.

Yeah, I'm still here. I'm Shirley. It's nice to meet you.

It's nice to meet you, too. I'm not sure what you're talking about analyzer because, like, I'm totally new. I've heard you speak a few times.

I've seen some of your TikToks, but I've never joined one of your classes before, so I'm not sure what this analyzer thing is. Okay. So, I'm about to show you.

Where is the Zoom? Okay. Can you see my screen? Yes, I can. All right.

So, this is the eraarc.com. This is our official website. And it goes over – like, these videos right here are all about the legal line. Those are important to watch.

But when it comes to the analyzer, if you go to the top here, you see the little scales? Yes. Click on that. And this right here gives you a video on how to use it.

We also have a Facebook group called Legal Line Analyzer, and it has videos in there showing the best way to use the analyzer. Okay. So, for this instance, what I would be doing is I would go to – if you don't have it – like, my web browser has ChatGBT on it already.

But if you don't have CoPilot, go download the app and then ask it specific questions that – I need to go find the video that's going to show you exactly what to do. But this is what it looks like on the backend. And you're just going to take whatever you need to take.

So, the agreement between the mortgage company, the HELOC, all of that data. If it's different – if it's like you have a mortgage company agreement and then you have a HELOC agreement, then I would run two different times instead of one. And then you're going to use CoPilot to find out where the authority derives from, the claim of authority is deriving from for anyone to take a home, seize a home, lean a home, do anything like that.

What are the legalities regarding that? So, if I go to – let's see. What are you guys still seeing? Do we have it up there? Babe, do you have that video? Where? What, Facebook? I think it's on Facebook. Look for the video.

The one where you went over the whole thing with the legal analyzer? This one right here. We can't see your screen. We only see – Babe, we can't see your screen.

Okay, hold on. Let me figure out what I just did. What screen are you seeing right now? You opened up – what is that? MSN.

Microsoft. I think you just opened up a new tab and all we're seeing is a different tab. So, yeah, stop the share and then re-share.

Okay. Let me go back to where I was at because the video that I'm looking for is not on TikTok. Which one are you looking for? The one where I go over – I'm getting the link right now.

I just have to find the video. It's where I go over the how to use the analyzer and I think this is it. Yep, that's it.

Sorry, guys. I'm going to put the link here in the chat. Put that right there.

Copy and paste that link. That's the video to how to use the analyzer. The most impactful way that you can use it, the way that I personally use it for everything that I do.

And then that's what I would do is I'd follow that process and put all of your documents into the analyzer, follow the process that I'm showing in the video and then execute that process and fault their ability to do what they're doing. Okay. But you said you have seven days so you're going to have to move.

Be fast. Yeah. We tried some other things.

We put in a verified pleading as a witness. Well, see right there. It says it in the words, pleading.

Pleading means that something else has the authority to give you permission. It's these words. They trip you up all the time.

Yeah. And they want you to ask them for permission. Can you please give me permission to continue to stay in my house and steward it? Right.

Well, thank you. I appreciate your help. Yes, ma'am.

If you have any questions along the way while you're watching that video, just send them to the telegram channel because our. Facebook is under Facebook jail for our messenger, so I can see messages, but I can't talk to anybody. Could you put that in the chat, the telegram link? There you go.

Perfect. Here is also another link to our link tree that has a lot of resources on it as well. And that's our main site also.

Where you can find the analyzer. OK. Thank you so much.

Yes, ma'am. I think I saw a video that you have a new baby. Congratulations.

Thank you. She's three months old and she is hilarious. Oh, was my daughter had her baby April 27th? My grandbaby, my six grandbaby.

Is that a close to when you had yours or was that a little bit sooner than May 24th? OK, very good. Almost exactly a month apart. Well, Lord bless you for helping all of us.

We really appreciate it. It's hard when you have a new baby, too. Yeah, that's why I have to do these calls in this collective, because there's no just trying to find a time to do this.

She heard her name. Second after you guys started talking to them. Oh, look.

Oh, how precious. What a sweetheart. Anything is right now.

But I forgot what I was saying now. Oh, yeah. Trying to find time to do anything outside of these scheduled call times and stuff that we I literally put together to protect my ability to get things done.

Yeah. So it allows me to help and serve in a structure that also allows me to honor my duties that come first here. Very good.

Teresa, I see your hand and Adrian. Yes, I just wanted to ask you a question. My grandson, I told you last time, was in the boys home and I'm trying to figure out how to get him out.

I have no documentation at all to use, so I don't know how to get him out of there because they're drugging him up on all kinds of meds and everything. I called him yesterday and he was so drugged up he couldn't even hardly talk to me. And it was like 2.30 in the day.

So I'm trying to figure out how to get him out and I need some guidance. OK, so I previously thought that this was something that they were putting him in your hands and you just had to fill out paperwork or something like that. Well, that's what I thought.

Well, I thought it was going that way, but then all of a sudden they're putting him in a mental hospital and they got him on drugs and everything since then. So, I mean, I didn't even know where he was for a whole week from last Tuesday till this Tuesday. I didn't know where he was and I hadn't heard from him.

And then, like I said, I talked to him for the first time yesterday and he was so high on drugs that he couldn't even carry on a conversation with me. I want to get him out of there because I don't know what's going on in that place. What's his age, by the way? He's 17.

Jesus. I know what goes on inside of those places. I was thrown in one for talking about all of this.

Well, I was thrown in one by my own family because I lived in a state where all you have to do is just go make a claim and they'll come lock you up and throw you in a mental hospital over a claim that somebody else made and has no proof to back it up. Right, exactly. So what I'd be doing is challenging that hospital's authority to force him to stay there and force medication on him.

So what do I do, write a letter? Will the analyzer take a note? The analyzer will do it. You go and find the claims of authority that the hospital has. Remember how I've gone over this in class? Where you go to co-pilot and for this instance you'd say, where does the claim of authority derive from for the hospital to enforce someone to stay inside of their, for the mental hospital, to force someone to stay in it against their will and force them to take medication against their will? I need all of the legal codes, policies, regulations that are the source of their claims of authority.

And then you go and you take everything that it gives you and you go and get the legislation for every code and policy that it's, and statute that it's given you. And then you take all of that, copy and paste it into a notepad. And then once you have the full notepad, you go and run that, paste that into the analyzer.

Now will it read cursive writing? No. No, it has to be printed. Yeah, but what I'm saying to do, you won't even need cursive writing.

You're just going and getting legislature that's online. Okay. All right.

Because I, he thinks, he says they're helping him. So I'm sure he's not going to say that they're enforcing right now. I can tell you from experience, they drug you up so much that you literally will change your own narrative internally.

I came out of the hospital. Everybody was like, who the fuck is she at this point? Because I was like, they're helping people guys. When I finally got off the medication and woke up to what I was saying, I was like, who the fuck is that? Because that is not me.

And I would never say that. Well, the boys, the boys home is in charge of him right now. So I don't have any legal authority other than being his grandmother.

He was in my care for many years, but he's not anymore. He's in there. And then the boys home has the legal guardianship over him right now.

So will that work for me? They don't actually have, they don't have legal guardianship over him. They have, they have legal guardianship over the identity of you. Okay.

They have it over the mimic, not of him, the physical biological manifestation. And you are. Now is this being recorded right now so I can go back and listen to this? Yes.

Okay, good. Okay, great. Thank you.

Yeah, they have no, they have no authority over him whatsoever. And they have no proof of that authority. The only thing that they can prove is that they have a contract like that piece of paper we're talking about.

And that there are words on that piece of paper that have definitions and roles. And he is self-identifying with one. And you're challenging all of it.

So I can do it. Challenge the boys home and the hospital. And they should be able to release him right away.

You can challenge. I don't know what they're going to do. I haven't had to do this with the analyzer.

Everybody's coming with new things that they're using all this for. We're all together. But I would be challenging is that both of those and also challenging that he is that role.

Okay. All right. All right, Adrian.

First of all, you guys are going to get a kick out of this. I met my Bluetooth must be on my laptop and it keeps connecting to a device in the room where I come and do these calls. And that is what the echo was.

And I apologize. We got to figure it out and got it unplugged. Anyhow, we've been working on our Tom student loans and the default letter is ready to go out in tomorrow.

Tomorrow's mail. Well, I just discovered two things this week. One thing is that the US Department of Education has their hand in the account as well.

I don't know. I we didn't send anything to the US Department of Education. So I guess that's my question.

Do I need to like send the whole packet out again to them or because of the wording that the challenge letter and now the default letter. Includes like your partners, anybody who has interest in this claim. I don't I feel a little stalled out.

Like, do I need to kind of start the process over with this new address or just kind of leave it like it is and just move forward and see what they need to say? I mean, I mean, my my gut is that they're going to keep sending statements. I'm going to just say return to sender and send it back. And I don't know.

What do you what do you think? Well, that's the thing. Babe. Hold on.

So, yeah. Yes. Babe.

What? Can you come get her? She just used the bathroom. Sounds like a you problem. I'm scared.

Yeah. So, anyway, as far as that goes, it's letting them know that everybody that touches it or has any kind of. Communication or involvement in it, it's already making that clear in the letter.

And here's the thing is, when I sent out all of my letters, when I first started doing all this, I knew human nature. I knew that. Not only are they going to want to talk to somebody that's above them, but they're going to want to talk to everybody that's involved so that they can try and get some help because they don't know what to do.

And by default of them running to go get assistance, they're putting everyone on notice for me. Okay, perfect. That's kind of what I was thinking, too.

I read it, the language around it today, and it seems really clear to me. So my next question about that is then, I guess I got to be careful with what I'm expecting, because I am expecting them to try to bully us or bully Tom, pressure him into reanimating and picking up the paper again and what all. And or doing a collections move of some kind.

And so at what point do we enforce our authority to charge them fines for violating the agreement that we sent to them? It's not agreement, the challenge that we send to them. Yeah. How do we go about that? So one narrative, rewrite that, because you're commanding this story and how it plays out, right? So if you're commanding it that they're going to bully you and you're going to have to do that, well, then that's what you're going to be going through.

So start telling the story that they're not going to be bullying you. That this is just going to they're going to go silent. They're just going to leave you alone.

The most they're going to do is send you paper terrorism. You have a trash can for that or you can send it back to them. It's up to you.

But first, do that. Second, remember the class that I don't know if you were there for the class that I went over the liens and all of that stuff. Were you there for that one? I don't know that it was.

Okay. So that's in the we gather weekly. It's posted in that group.

And it goes over all of the. The protocols that they follow when and whether you're an agent or agency that's trying to lean or see something or whether you're on the personal side and you're trying to hold them accountable. So I would watch that video and then when you feel you need to do it, then you do it.

I don't think you're going to need to do it. But, yeah, that's good. That's good.

Well, and here's here's the other interesting thing to my daughter. One of my daughters took out a bit of student loan when she was in school years ago, and they put all of her stuff on to my husband's identifying account and his social security number. She's completely disconnected from the money that she borrowed.

And it's all on Tom. So when this is done, my daughter's debt is going to be cleared as well. So I'm so excited.

I just am like, I'm just really excited. So I just appreciate everything that you've set up, the tools that you've put in place that we can just jump in and, like, kind of go where it leads us. You know what I mean? I feel like this the next step becomes apparent or like, I don't know.

I just it's not easy. I'm not saying that it's easy. But I'm saying that the the the more often I'm connecting in these spaces and hearing people's stories and their own processes, each of us is doing it kind of a little bit different.

We've got different issues and so different things are going on. But there is a a flow. And it just feels really right.

And I just really appreciate you putting language around it. You're giving us some context again, like the words like the power of life and death are on our tongue, man. It's like giving language to this process is really powerful.

I knew that, but it's a different knowing. Implementing is our first trial kind of implementing. Yeah, this this whole new place to stand.

And I just really appreciate it. So I'm excited. So thanks.

Yes, ma'am. And remember, they're the claimants coming to the table and they've built a record, right? I love being the challenger. I challenge that claim.

I challenge that claim. Yeah. Yeah.

And all they can do at the end of this is, well, I'm going to send it to a debt collector. Well, by all means, send it to the debt collector, let them pay it off and get you paid for it. And I'll send the same shit to the debt collector.

It's because it's on record because now it's on record. They can't take it to the court. They can take it to the court with a claim.

But again, if they do that, you can challenge the claim. Yeah. Anyway, so thank you so much.

So I'm not going to worry about sending anything to the Department of Education at this point. I'm just going to kind of follow what's unfolding like right now just for this one approach to the one component of the loan holder. Yep.

Okay. It's literally everybody needs to go with what they feel called to do in every moment.

There's times where I feel, you know what? This is enough.

I send it to this. There's times where I'm like, I'm bombing all of you. I'm dropping the nukes everywhere.

Yeah, I love it. And they're love bombs. It's a love awareness bomb.

Come back to reality bomb. Come on. Well, and I love that your approach and Kat was saying this too.

The approach is with a smile, especially walking in and talking to those people face to face. It's coming in sweet instead of coming in antagonistic. Yep.

And I think it raises curiosity. And I think it kind of helps put some of the defensive walls down. And I think it also eliminates some judgments that may be formulating in the atmosphere or whatever.

I just think kindness is really disarming in a really good way. So we got to think about this as a society. Look, these guys are they're animating these roles as judges, but they're they're beings too.

Yeah, they go through stress too. And they have hard days too. And they deal with a lot of fucking chaos every single day.

So when you come in as a ray of fucking sunshine with awareness, and you're not being chaos, they're like, thank you for existing. Yeah. Anyway, that's all I had.

Thank you so much. Yes, ma'am. All right, guys.

So is there anybody else? Yeah. And I just add to finish this off is this. It's so brilliant what you explained today and what we talked about and everyone that everything is its own jurisdiction.

And if we take this further, that I am my own jurisdiction, but so is Matt. So are you. So is Adriana and Lynn and all of us.

And if we start not only looking at the system that way, but at each other in our relationships that way, then we can really learn how we amongst each other communicate, how we accept that other people just live their own reality and we don't have expectations to them, or we don't put pressure on them, that we just always stick with how you always say stick with yourself. If there's a problem, look at yourself, figure it out at yourself, with yourself as the creator or however, and then everything else around you can pick up on that and adjust to that and also come from that place of love and kindness. And that's how we actually can really live a life worth living.

And everything else is pushed on us. It's crap that we have to fight within our families. And this is given to us from generation to generation.

It shouldn't be like this. And I think that's the biggest, you know, the essence of the whole thing. And if we, once we see this in ourselves, then it becomes so much more crystal clear that everything around us is just like that too.

So thank you. And that's what I wanted to say. Well, I love that addition because you're right.

It's a lack of knowing of jurisdiction, what it truly is that makes us, that has reality and everybody in it forcing their will on each other. I can be here and view you experiencing your own jurisdiction at any moment inside your container, with your narrow walk, with all of our creator, right? I don't have to mold you into my jurisdiction. I don't have to get you to be a photocopy of me.

So when I think of that, it bores the shit out of me to think about everybody being exactly the same. And that's what mankind does is like, we want you to conform to this because this is our level of comfort. This is our space of being that we're safe within and you're not being that.

So you feel unsafe to our safety here. And it's like, no. That's just you.

I'm me. Let me be me. I'm gonna let you be you.

The only thing that we collectively need to come together as is this knowing of the jurisdictions of the as above and the so below and what we're doing to ourselves by choosing the so below in our day to day thoughts, feelings, actions, interactions, all that. If we go to the as above, boy, we're in bliss. We are in the most amplified, happy state of being and happy to me is peace.

You know, it's not like this. I'm just happy, but I'm not peaceful. I can laugh for a few minutes, but then I'm back to my my depression.

No, like I'm at peace. I'm OK with everything in my life. If tomorrow came and all of a sudden this isn't going to happen because I stay in alignment with as above, but say tomorrow came and I lost everything but my body.

Well, the first thing that I need to renovate in that moment would be my body, not the external world. It would be me, my mind, all the things that I'm putting in myself, all the things I'm agreeing to, all the actions that I'm taking. And I would be fortified in my knowing that as long as I have my body and I have my breath, I'm OK and I can smile about that.

Whether I know what's coming or not, I have been in so many situations where I don't know what's coming in the next hour, five minutes, ten minutes a year. I don't know. All I know is I'm going to keep going in the same direction and see what happens.

And by same direction, I'm not saying if you're hitting a brick wall, keep running into the fucking wall. I'm just saying going in the same direction of where I'm being called. My propulsion system through my heart center is pulling me through this physical dimension towards a calling.

And I'm the one that's ringing on the other side. I'm calling myself through my narrative. And I'm also answering the call and moving to myself.

And my creator has given me a space to do that. Yeah. And all together, we make this beautiful, beautiful, in all these facets, this whole of creation.

And every flower is different. So every being is different. And that is the beauty.

And I believe we come here to be kind and loving and helpful to each other. And that's why we came, not to fight with each other. Look at your own soul.

Is your soul like the essence of yourself? Yeah. Is it not kind and loving to you? Of course. Yeah.

And how do we identify the imposter? It's being mean. And it's speaking in our own voice inside of our own head. That's true.

That's true. Yeah, sometimes Kat is hard on herself, you know. And she'll say it.

And I'll say, don't you talk about my wife like that. I love that. So much.

Because I'm hard on myself too. We don't say sorry anymore either. We say, I'm so joy-ry.

We change that up too. I remember when somebody got me to stop saying sorry, because I said it all the time. And I didn't realize it was just a response of everybody around you making you walk on eggshells.

So you're sorry about everything. Exactly. And I remember the guy I was talking to, he's like, can you do me a favor? And I'm like, what? He's like, can you stop saying fucking sorry? I'm sorry.

And he's like, damn it, stop it. And the other thing is what you just said too. I don't know.

One of the ladies you said, change your narrative. Because if you say sorry all the time, you evoke sorrow. Do you really want to? And that's why Matt said, if you need to say it, say, I'm joy-ry.

Be in the middle. There is pain, and there's joy, and there's all these things. As long as we are all coming from here and aligning with here, there won't be chaos.

There won't be pain. There won't be suffering. There won't be anybody out here hungry and homeless and going through any of these things.

It all ends. It literally all ends. So that's why I say all the time, if I have a choice between lowering myself to your inability to stand in your authority so that you can feel something, or standing in my authority to be that example to help you rise up to meet me there, I'm going to choose the latter.

I'm going to always stand here so that you'll rise to here, because then everyone's abundant. Everyone has what they need. Everyone has aligned with the As Above.

And when I found my post in the As Above jurisdiction, I refused to move from it. I know that's my job. I've got to stay there.

So anyway, we have hit the two-hour mark. I appreciate you guys. Selah's getting upset.

So Mommy's got to go be Mommy. Thank you so much. Thank you.

All right. Good night, guys. Thank you.

Bye. Bye.
